Dear Judy Horwood,

I write in strong support of the two proposals played before the YorkU Advisory Committee on Responsible Investment, the YU Divest, which seeks to avoid investment in the arms industry, and Fossil Free York, which seeks to divest York University investments in fossil fuels. I found their proposal compelling in being evidence-based and most importantly, reasonably feasible. Especially in the case of the Fossil Free York proposal, it's clear that investment in alternative-to-fossil-fuel energy sources would be not only socially and ecologically responsible, but also an excellent financial investment.

I strongly hope that YUACRI will advise the Board of Governors to revise its investment strategies in line with these two proposals.

Sincerely,

Michael Zryd
