As a 20-year member of the York community I strongly support the divestment initiative as proposed in Y-File link. There is evidence that socially responsible investment can and will outperform in the long run. Investing in death and destruction benefits no one. There is absolutely no valid argument to be investing in companies and funds that support and aid the destruction of the planet and human beings that populate this planet. As a university I think it is an opportune chance to lead pro actively in promoting socially responsible investing.

As a contributor to the York Pension plan I really do not like the fact that my pension earnings go toward investments in companies that are the antithesis of social responsibility.
